

ISA AWARD

Mrs Hewett attended a prestigious award ceremony at the Brewery Centre in London on 10th October to collect our International Schools Award. This is accredited to schools which have demonstrated outstanding development of the international dimension in the curriculum. The award was presented by George Alagiah, who currently fronts BBC's Six O'clock News. George has been one of the BBC's leading foreign correspondents and won numerous awards including Amnesty International's Best TV Journalist award in 1994. As the son of an immigrant family who came to England in 1967, he is committed to the linking of schools across the world and the promotion of improved understanding of other cultures. Delegates were also privileged to hear George speak about his book "A Home from Home" which explores his own immigrant identity and views on multiculturalism.

It was an excellent occasion which recognized the hard work of pupils and staff in establishing an international dimension in the school.

Well done to everybody!

J Hewett

department for children, schools and families

International School Award 2007

Sir Thomas Rich's School

has been accredited for outstanding development of the international dimension in the curriculum

1 September 2007

Jim Knight MP
Minister of State (Schools and Learners)

International School Award
2007-2010

 BRITISH COUNCIL